Cathy Lambert is the Supervisor of the Native Species Breeding Program (NSBP) at the Perth Zoo and has worked in this section (initially as a Keeper), since 1996.

After working in various jobs through her twenties, she was drawn to conservation work completing a mature age Biology Degree at Curtin University before working briefly for the Department of Environment and Conservation, and then the Zoo.

Cathy's interests are in reproductive biology and captive breeding of endangered species for release to the wild as part of an integrated approach to aid species recovery. The NSBP team are currently working with Numbats, Western Swamp Tortoises and Dibblers and have also been rearing White-bellied and Orange-bellied frogs for release programs since 2010.

With the environment dear to all of us, Cathy's presentation will be full of interest and intrigue! Come and join us for dinner on 2 May.
